

PRIVACY NOTICE

This data protection notice explains how Frequentis DFS Aerosense GmbH (“Aerosense”) handles and processes personal data collected on the website www.aerosense.solutions and its subsites, as well as personal data generated by other communication with you, unless an existing contractual relationship with you already provides you with the requisite information.

We also inform you about your rights as a concerned person, and how you may control collection and processing of your personal information.

1.1 Contacting us without using our website

If you contact us by other means of communication than our website, for example by phone, email, instant messaging or by sending us a hardcopy letter, we will process at least your name, contact data and the fact that you have contacted us and when you did so electronically, by entering it in a database which is appropriate for handling your enquiry. If necessary for understanding or resolving it, we will process any other personal data you have voluntarily provided us with during your request, thus based on your consent and the purpose defined by you (Art 6(1)(a) GDPR). If you contact us in relation to a new project, we will conduct the processing based on Art 6(1)(b) GDPR.

We will delete your personal data once your enquiry has been resolved and our record retention obligations under applicable statutory regulations have been fulfilled.

In case you have contacted us to request to receive newsletters or other information from Frequentis from time to time, for example by giving us your business card and asking us to put you on our mailing lists, you may revoke this consent at any time without providing reasons. To revoke your consent, please use the contact form or the unsubscribe link indicated in our newsletters and in similar emails sent to you.

1.2 Publicly available areas of our website

You can use the publicly accessible areas of aerosense.solutions without disclosing your identity. In case we explicitly ask you for personal information (e.g. name, e-mail address, relevant region/market, industry of interest), for example when you use the contact form or register for a newsletter, you do so voluntarily. We only use the information provided by you for our own business purposes, such as sending you the requested material.

If you communicate with us by using a contact form on aerosense.solutions, the information marked as “required” is necessary for us to efficiently handle your enquiry. You may provide any further information voluntarily. We thus process the information provided by you through the contact form based on your consent (Art 6(1)(a) GDPR). We will delete this personal data once your enquiry has been resolved and our record retention obligations under applicable statutory regulations have been fulfilled.

In case you have given consent to receive newsletters or other information from Aerosense, you may revoke this consent at any time without providing reasons. To revoke your consent, please use the contact form or the unsubscribe link indicated in our newsletters and in similar emails sent to you.

1.3 Logging and protocols

When you visit aerosense.solutions, your internet access provider and, depending on your settings, your browser makes certain information accessible to us, such as your IP address, time and date of your visit and its length, the operating system used, version and language settings of your browser, as well as the hyperlinks contained on a aerosense.solutions webpage you have clicked on and how you move through the website. If you have reached aerosense.solutions through a link on a different website, it is possible to see that website as well. If you have reached aerosense.solutions through a search engine, it is possible to see which words you have used in the search.

We process the mentioned types of data to pursue our legitimate interests pursuant Art 6(1)(f) GDPR, which are:

- facilitating flawless connections to our website
- ensuring our website can be used comfortably
- analysing system security and stability
- further technical-administrative purposes.

These logfiles are automatically deleted after 30 days. In case there was a security incident, we will retain individually involved records longer than this period for forensic purposes, and only delete these records after fulfilment.

In any case, full IP addresses are only accessible by specially designated persons in our IT department and will not be processed for any other purpose than investigating a security incident.

1.4 Transfer of your personal data

We do not transfer your personal data to third parties unless you have explicitly consented to such a transfer or we are entitled or obligated to do so, for example based on Art. 6 GDPR or under the laws of an EU or EEA member state. In some instances, we use third parties as data processors as allowed under the GDPR, and whenever we do so, Frequentis remains fully responsible for that processing as the data controller. For example, www.aerosense.solutions is hosted by internex GmbH, Lagerstraße 15, 3950 Gmünd, Austria. For our questionnaire (<https://bct.aerosense.solutions/>) we use the web-hosting services of PION Websystems GmbH, Loquaiplatz 12, 1060 Vienna, Austria.

If you have given us your consent to receive newsletters or other information, we transfer the personal data you have entrusted us with to Frequentis AG (Innovationsstrasse 1, 1100 Vienna, Austria) for providing you with such newsletter and other information. Frequentis AG informs in the Privacy Notice on how they process your data (<https://www.frequentis.com/en/privacy-notice>).
